Terms of Service

Our service provides information about health conditions, possible causes, and what steps may be taken to treat certain illnesses. The information we provide is for information only, it is not medical advice. We do not diagnose health conditions or prescribe how you should treat a health condition you have. This should only be done with help of a health professional. You are responsible for deciding whether to contact a health professional and seek medical advice. The content provided is not meant to be a substitute for professional judgment and is not to be used for medical diagnosis or treatment. Medicine is constantly changing and some information may be or become outdated. Physician Stat and its team is not responsible for any errors, omissions, or inappropriate use of this site. Our content was developed by physicians and is provided free of charge.
